A NEW WORK BY CANON FARRAR.

THE EARLY DAYS OF CHRISTIANITY.

By F. W. FARRAR, D.D., F.R.S., Canon of Westminster, author of "The Life of Christ," "The Life and Work of St. Paul," etc.

"It describes the deeply interesting events of the early days of the Christian Church, and the state of politics and society in which the Church grew up. An account is given of the lives and writings of the three pillar Apostles, St. Peter, St. James, and St. John, with an explanation of their Epistles and of the Apocalypse. The social and political conditions of the Roman Empire, and the relation of the Church with it, are treated with Canon Farrar's well-known learning and eloquence."

With this work the important series of volumes on the Early Church, commenced with Canon Farrar's "Life of Christ" and "Life and Works of St. Paul," is completed.

Constitutional History and Political Development of the United States.

By SIMON STERNE, of the New York Bar. With Appendix and Complete Index. 1 vol., 12mo, 334 pages. Price, $1.25.

This volume has been endorsed by the SOCIETY FOR POLITICAL EDUCATION, and will be included in their list of publications.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"There is scholarship and trained judgment shown in the preparation of the work, and its ideas are presented in a clear and entertaining form. Its questions are of immediate interest to every citizen, and as here considered will be thoroughly understood."—Boston Globe.

"Mr. Sterne's book is an interesting and worthy effort to instruct and interest the people in our great organic law. . . . His explanations of the different features of the Constitution are clear and judicious, and his historical illustrations are good."—The Christian Intelligencer.

"The volume covers a wide field in the most exhaustive manner, and within such reasonable limits that the reader is never fatigued, but always instructed and entertained."—Philadelphia Chronicle-Herald.

"We think that any one who aims to get a clear idea of what has made our Constitution and incidentally assisted in the development of our country's resources, and what the political parties have done and are calculated to do, will find the wisdom and the information of a great many books and of a great deal of history condensed and classified here in a form alike accessible and interesting."—Boston Post.

"This is the most philosophical and at the same time most popular treatise that has yet been written by an American upon the Constitution of the United States. It is not a running commentary, but a methodical treatise, into which the entirety of the Constitution is interwoven, so that the reader grasps at the same time the text of the instrument, the interpretive decisions thereupon by the Supreme Court, and the strong, clear, and sagacious views of the writer. No important question is overlooked, and the very latest are treated fairly and fully. We commend this work for popular reading, since it is so sound, so comprehensive, and so well put together. A full and excellent index is given at its conclusion."—Episcopal Register, Philadelphia.

NOTES IN SEASON.

JAMES R. OSGOOD & CO. issue to-day Mr. Howells' story, "A Modern Instance."

D. APPLETON & CO. will have ready next week "Eighteenth Century Essays," selected and annotated by Austin Dobson; also the first volume of the Parchment series of Shakespeare's works.

THE fall parcel sale of English and American books and stationery will take place at Messrs. Bangs & Co.'s rooms, 739 and 741 Broadway, on Monday, November 1. Contributors are requested to send in their invoices by the 21st inst., at which time the catalogue will go to press.

LEE & SHEPARD have now ready three of their neat and popular holiday gift-books: "That Glorious Song of Old," by Edmund Hamilton Sears, illustrated by Alfred Fredericks, and engraved under the supervision of G. T. Andrew; "Ring Out, Wild Bells," by Alfred Tennyson, illustrated by Miss L. B. Humphrey; and "Curfew must not Ring Tonight," by Rosa H. Thorpe, illustrated by F. T. Merrill and E. H. Garrett. These volumes are carefully printed on heavy paper and neatly bound in cloth. The illustrations picture each stanza, and are in the best style of art by well-known artists.

S. E. CASSINO has now ready "John Greenleaf Whittier—his Life, Genius, and Writings," by W. Sloane Kennedy. The unusual feature of this work is that much of Whittier's life is told in his own words. The first part treats of "Whittier the Reformer," in a full and interesting account; the second part of the man and artist, and a study of Quakerism. These chapters are remarkable for strong original criticism and great research in the field of European and American poetry and poetical criticism. Much space is given to Whittier's ballads and their history. The work is bound appropriately in Quaker drab, with a touch of gold in the titles. The portrait and illustrations are by the best artists, and the typography is excellent.

S. C. GRIGGS & CO. have just issued Prof. A. H. Welsh's important and scholarly work on "The Development of English Literature and Language." The work is historical in a broad sense—going back to the pre-English ages, indicating the elements of the English nation, the controlling qualities of English civilization, showing the sources from which the speech and literature have been derived, and illustrating their development by appropriate examples woven into the text of criticism, from its earliest stages to the death of Emerson. An important feature of the work is the discussion of the American literature of the nineteenth century in connection with the English literature of the same period. On the 14th inst. they will issue Schelling's "Transcendental Idealism," by Prof. John Watson, forming the second volume in their Philosophic Classics; also new editions of Tegner's "Fridthjof's Saga," from the Swedish by T. A. E. and M. A. L. Holcomb, and of "Songs of Yesterday," by Benj. F. Taylor.

CASSELL, PETTER, GALPIN & CO. have nearly ready "The United States Art Directory and Year-Book," an important work of reference for artists, students, amateurs, and others, compiled under the editorial supervision of Mr. S. R. Koehler, editor of the late American Art Review. The book will contain a great amount of interesting and valuable information concerning the art schools, art museums, and other public collections of works of art, art clubs, and art societies, throughout the United States, with the names of their officers and teachers, comprising about 1000 names in the index; a list of the exhibitions to be held during the coming season; notices of American artists deceased during the past year; a list of art publications issued during the same period, together with a variety of other facts interesting to those who are in any way connected with the fine arts. The "Artists' Directory," which will be a special feature of the book, will contain about 1500 entries, comprising about 2000 names with full address wherever it was possible to obtain it, besides an index to teachers and others connected with societies, schools, etc.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO. will publish next week the holiday edition of Mr. Aldrich's poems, with an admirable steel portrait, and excellent illustrations by the Paint and Clay Club of Boston. The binding will be a variation from the ordinary style of holiday books, part of the edition being bound in illuminated flexible covers, part in limp cloth, tastefully stamped, and part in tree calf and morocco. At the same time will appear Miss Phelps' novel, "Doctor Zay," which with a plot very similar to that of Mr Howells' novel, "Dr. Breen's Practice," is a very different story, and one of the most readable and striking novels Miss Phelps has ever written. With these will be issued the new and enlarged edition of Mrs. Whitney's "Mother Goose for Grown Folks," containing considerable additions, with illustrations by Agustus Hopping, and the illustrated edition of "Poems of America," including in three volumes what Mr. Longfellow comprised in his two volumes of "Poems of Places," devoted to New England, and one each to the Middle States, Southern States, Western States, and British America. There are seventy illustrations in these volumes, which include almost every poem ever written relating to localities on the western continent, and commemorating historic incidents, describing picturesque and majestic scenes, and associating memorable experiences of human life with particular rivers, mountains, or towns.

Rita (pseud.) Faustine: a novel. Phil., J. B. Lippincott & Co., 1883 [1882]. 386 p. S. cl., $1.

A dramatic and somewhat sensational novel, the prime mover in which is a mysterious Catholic priest, who is almost fiend-like in the apparently purposeless crime and misery which he accomplishes; the heroine, "Faustine," who is a virtuous woman, in spite of her name, is represented as his tool, and but following out his commands in breaking hearts and doing other unaccountable mischief; she turns out to be his daughter, he having married before he entered the priesthood; but the author scarcely explains his unprincipled career by attributing his actions to a desire to advance the church and gain converts; aside from this objectionable element, there are two pretty love stories, a duel, a murder, plenty society talk and much else to charm the novel-reader. This is the initial volume of a new series of novels the Lippincotts announce in uniform bindings, and at the uniform price of $1.

"The volume in its arrangement, in its treatment of the life of General Thomas and in its logical form is a mode one. In addition its style is both natural and easy and full of feeling. Few late books will so worthily engage the interest of the reader, who at once sees the gage thrown to public opinion by the author, and enters spiritedly into his sturdy championship of General Thomas. It contains a fine likeness of General Thomas, and its story is illustrated by authentic maps. There is a very good index."—Boston Globe.

Warner, Miss Susan. Nobody. [Anon.]. N. Y., Rob. Carter & Bros., 1883 [1882]. 695 p. D. cl., $1.75.

The style of the author of the "Wide, wide world" is so well known that it seems sufficient almost to simply call attention to the fact that she has written a new book; the plot turns upon the fact that a man of means and social position has the courage to marry a "nobody" in spite of much influence brought to bear against him; the heroine is one of Miss Warner's perfect girls, with a talent for saying and doing just the right thing; of course there is a good deal of religious teaching and much quoting of scripture texts.

Wells, T. Spencer, M.D. On ovarian and uterine tumors; their diagnosis and treatment. Phil., P. Blakiston, Son & Co., 1882. 530 p. il. 8°. cl., $7.

Welsh, Alfred H. Development of English literature and language. Chic., S. C. Griggs & Co., 1882. 2 v., 20+506; 6+560 p. O. cl., $5.

The characteristics of the work are: It goes back to the pre-English ages, indicating the elements of the English nation, the controlling qualities of English civilization, showing the sources from which the speech and literature have been derived, and illustrating their development by appropriate and copious examples woven into the text of criticism; each pre-eminent or representative author is discussed under the classified heads of Biography, Writings, Style, Rank, Character, and Influence, and each of these topics has the amplest justice by being made in its turn the central subject of thought, while all are logically related as the more or less interdependent parts of a whole; each of the periods into which the work is divided is introduced by a sketch of the features which distinguish it and of the forces which shape it, including Politics, the state of Society, Religion, Learning, Language, Poetry, the Drama, the Novel, the Periodical, History, Theology, Ethics, Science, Philosophy; an important feature is the discussion of the American literature of the nineteenth century in connection with the English literature of the same period.

Wilkins, W. A. The Cleverdale mystery; or, the machine and its wheels: a story of American life. N. Y., Fords, Howard & Hulbert, 1882. 287 p. D. cl., $1.

The tale and its moral are one and the same throughout—a showing up of the working of our present "machine politics," not only among the politicians and their offices, but also in the daily life of all who are connected with them, directly and indirectly. The author is editor of The Whitehall (N. Y.) Times. The New York World says: "Senator Hamlin, Cyprus Hart Miller, ex-Assemblyman Daley, Paddy Sullivan, Editor Rawlings, and the other characters will be recognized as types, if not as portraits, of working politicians of the day: not a little skill is displayed in the construction of the plot with which they are linked, and as the book, unlike the average political novel, is non-partisan, it will be read with pleasure by thousands for whom 'practical politics' is but a name."

The Use of a Merchant.

A merchant gets together and sells what people want. He is a good merchant who gets together acceptable things, sells them rather low, and improves his capital. The more tempting and satisfying things he gets together, the lower he sells them, and the faster he grows rich, the greater he is as a merchant. The greatest merchant of all is he who gathers the most and the most salable merchandise, who secures his future trade and good-will at the same time by moderation in prices and liberality in dealing, and still makes money enough to carry on his growing enterprises in safety, with margin for contingencies. He who lacks any of these elements, however excellent a man, neighbor or citizen he may be, is not a great merchant; nor, indeed, a successful merchant, nor a safe one. He who combines them all in the greatest degree is the greatest merchant, though he may not be a good man, neighbor or citizen. We are speaking of merchants as merchants. Nobody, we think, will question these successive statements.

And yet there is a journal in New York, a Professor of Success in an important branch of trade, namely, bookselling; which teaches that a bookseller ought not to sell anything but books; that he ought to sell at prices made by somebody else, so as to not give any possible money-advantage over anybody else. We do not know that it says anything about the bookseller getting rich. We do not think it need. We do not know of any bookseller who is getting rich by acting on its advice. The journal is the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY.

We know of a bookseller who has, for several years, doubled his stock, doubled his sales, and, of course, more than doubled his profits, every year; a bookseller who discriminates between books and books, who "pushes" some and even refuses orders for others; who respects books somewhat according to their contents, not altogether according to the profits they may bring; who also sells silks and bonnets and linens and carpets and bedsteads and knives and forks and pots and kettles and playthings and candy and soda-water; through whose store fifty thousand people pass every fair day in the bookselling harvest-time, before Christmas. Those fifty thousand people buy his books. They are there because so many wants are so well satisfied there. Would he be wise to drop forty sorts of merchandise and stick to one?

The Publishers' Weekly.

OCTOBER 7, 1882.

PUBLISHERS are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

The trade are invited to send "Communications" to the editor on any topic of interest to the trade, and as to which an interchange of opinion is desirable. Also, matter for "Notes and Queries," gratefully received.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

NAY, nay, brother, thou wouldst not be wise "to drop the forty sorts of merchandise and stick to one." Not the playthings, not the candy, and, therefore, not the books. For thou hast found the books even more pleasing than the sweetest of "taffy." And thou art a good merchant, who knowest the taste of thy custom. Thou combinest all the elements of him of whom thou sayest, "He who combines them all in the greatest degree is the greatest merchant, though he may not be a good man, neighbor or citizen." And thou hast got together "acceptable things," and art improving thy capital over him who lacks the elements, "however excellent a man, neighbor or citizen he may be." And thou, like the good "New Pirate" whom by natural affinity thou hast chosen for another text in thy paper, hast done a public good. For thou seekest to keep thy city full of "excellent men, neighbors or citizens." And, also like the good "New Pirate," thou never callest upon the public to notice what noble work thou art doing. Well dost thou draw a line and place the successful merchant on the one side and the good man on the other. For a wareroom is not a Sunday-school. Here thou mayest teach the young and innocent "Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven," and "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth," and "Ye cannot serve God and Mammon," and "Whatsover ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them." And thy good scholars in the Sunday-school follow thee into thy wareroom, because they believe in thee. And thou art a good merchant, and thou art rich. And therefore in thy wareroom thou dost not pray with the unwary, "And lead us not into temptation." For it is thy practice: "The more tempting things he gets together, the faster he grows rich." Nor dost thou pray, in walking to thy stores in the morning, "Give us this day our daily bread." We do not think thou needest. For thou takest the loaves from the tables of the tradesmen, and leavest them the crumbs. Now if some one should say to the one with the loaves, "If thou wilt be perfect, go and sell that thou hast, and give it to the poor"—would he be wise "to drop the forty sorts of merchandise"?

HE would not, for they are "great possessions." And every word that is said by our new contemporary, the Book News, is of the same wisdom, of which the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY lacks the first element. Therefore, the Book News truly says of the WEEKLY, "We do not know of any bookseller who is getting rich by acting on its advice." With all the wisdom of the good merchant against the bookseller, it has no advice for him how to get rich. And it has given none. It has given sundry advice to the publishers, "but that don't count." The PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY addresses the publishers just as the pastor addresses his parishioners. "It is my duty." After the sermon, they run back to the "scramble." And all run, but few read.

BUT what the WEEKLY lacks, our contemporary has in abundance. And now that it has so generously handed us the key to riches, we will not hide it under a bushel. Would that we could print its words of wisdom in golden letters! But the WEEKLY has done its best in printing them so apart, and in letters so large, that "those who run may read." Let every bookseller, let every good man that has foolishly wasted his life, and his money, and his industry in learning an honest trade, cut them out and put them in the rustic frame over his mantelpiece. Let him take out the time-worn, "Every man is a debtor to his profession," or "A Good Name is Rather to be Chosen than Great Riches," for they are not for "The Use of a Merchant." And what a glorious time is in store for us when this wisdom shall have spread over all the cities of the land, and when the great centres of business, the Broadways, the Chestnut Streets, the Washington Streets, and the Sixth Avenues will be one unbroken row of booksellers and others, who all "sell silks and bonnets and linens and carpets and bedsteads and knives and forks and pots and kettles and playthings and candy and soda-water." It will be the millennium, when everybody will be rich, even the booksellers and the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY!

WITH a few exceptions, so notable that they need not be named, the publishers of law-books seem to care as little for a proper bibliographical record of their books as the subscription-book publishers. Law-books are a specialty, and the general bookseller can scarcely afford to handle them as stock. But the booksellers, nevertheless, ought to have information on so important a class of books. Law publishers are inclined to underrate the value of proper information. There is scarcely any live bookseller who does not count some lawyers among his customers. They are a good class of bookbuyers, and many orders might be secured by the bookseller who is kept posted on the latest issues of law literature, not to speak of the advantages of a proper record which is largely consulted, for book information, by librarians and journalists. The proper record of law-books, at any rate, seems to the WEEKLY of such importance that, not being able to obtain satisfactory information directly, it has made arrangements outside of its office for a specially prepared record. It is to be hoped that, in time, the law publishers will follow the example of the medical publishers (who formerly were nearly as derelict), and relieve the WEEKLY of that share of the tax which in fairness should be borne by them.

The preponderance of law-books in this number is owing to the fact that it includes books issued since July 1, 1882. We are under special obligations to Messrs. Baker, Voorhis & Co. for kindly supplying the prices of the bulk of the law-books.

CUES TO TIMELY TOPICS.

HERBERT SPENCER forms the leading topic in Foster's Monthly Reference Lists for September.

POLITICAL BOSSES is the timely topic treated by Senator John I. Mitchell in the October North American.

IRELAND.—E. L. Godkin's article in the Nineteenth Century, "An American View of Ireland," has been reprinted in the October Eclectic.

THE GROWTH OF THE UNITED STATES.—Francis A. Walker, the Superintendent of the late census, gives a comparative statement in the October Century.

EDUCATIONAL.—C. H. Evans' American college directory, v. 4, 1882, St. Louis, Evans & Co., 1882, 168 p. 8°. ($1), contains "complete list of educational periodicals."—Library Journal.

LANDOR.—Professor Sidney Colvin has added some useful bibliographical notes to his "Selections from the Writings of Walter Savage Landor" (Macmillan).—Monthly Notes of the U. K. Lib. Assoc.

EGYPT AND THE EASTERN QUESTION.—The London Bookseller for September publishes a "Rough List of Recent Works" on this subject, followed by another list of the "Literature of the British Expedition to Egypt in 1801." The Academy states that the Lords of the Admiralty have decided to add Mr. Stanley Lane-Poole's "Egypt" (Sampson Low) to their list of works to be supplied to seamen's libraries. See also "Cues," P. W., Aug. 19 and Aug. 26.)

"THE BEST READING," edited by Lynds E. Jones, is, says the N. Y. World, "a classified record of current literature, English and American, from the centennial year down to the close of 1881, with the prices of the books. When the first series was published under the editorship of Mr. Perkins, the work was favorably noticed in these columns for its comprehensiveness and practicality. The second series deserves no less praise, and the book will be found quite as useful by the student as by the book-buyer." (Putnam. $1.)

HISTORICAL REFERENCE LISTS.—Under this heading can be classed three publications which have made their appearance almost simultaneously, and which, so soon following the excellent "Manual of Historical Literature," by Professor C. K. Adams, only prove how much there has been a want of such guides. The good work previously done in this direction by the Boston Public Library is now beginning to bear fruit. The first of the three new books has the above title, "Historical References," and is primarily "designed to facilitate the work of students of history in the Ohio State University, and to promote special studies in the subjects presented. The Lists relating to the Middle Ages, Modern Europe, and English Constitutional History are as full as the resources of the State Library would admit. The lecture subjects and references to accompany the course in the United States Constitutional History are fortunately more nearly complete, as the State Library is well equipped in the published sources. Still no claim is made that the list is exhaustive. It is presented with the hope that it may prove to be a practical working list for students whose time is subject to the limitations of the college curriculum." (Published by A. H. Smythe, Columbus, Ohio, 12°. pap., 40c.) The second, published by Ginn, Heath & Co., is "The Reader's Guide to English History," by Prof. Wm. Francis Allen. The arrangement of this useful guide "is that of four parallel columns upon two opposite pages: the first column containing the English sovereigns, in the several houses, in the form of genealogical tables; the second, good historical reading, whether histories, biographies, or essays; the third, novels, poems, and dramas illustrating that period of English history,—also, so far as possible, arranged chronologically; the fourth, the same class of works illustrating contemporary history." The third, published in London (E. Stanford, 1s. 6d.), is a descriptive Catalogue of Historical Novels and Tales, for the use of school libraries and teachers of history, enlarged from the list in the Journal of Education, March, 1882, compiled and described by H. Courthope Bowen. The PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY Office had intended to publish the latter, accompanied by historical references, chiefly based on the Boston and Quincy Public Libraries; but on reconsideration has decided to entrust a competent library hand at home with the compilation, on a new plan, of a guide to historical fiction with historical and other references for parallel reading. This volume is to be issued uniform with the "Reading Diary" and "Books of All Time." For the same series are preparing a guide to the Books of History, by Prof. C. K. Adams; a guide to the Books of Science, by Wm. C. Lane, of Harvard College Library; and other hand-books for the guidance of readers and librarians

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE noted case of Cape Cod residents against A. Williams & Co. was withdrawn from court and permanently settled.

S. E. CASSINO, having bought the Rollo plates, will reduce the number of volumes from fourteen to seven, and issue them in handsome new cloth bindings in the spring.

GEORGE ROUTLEDGE & SONS have ready this week their handsome edition of George Macdonald's works, in 18 volumes, and the "Gilbert Shakespeare," in one handsome and fully illustrated quarto volume.

JANSEN, MCCLURG & CO. have decided to publish in book-form the series of articles by Mr. Howard Henderson recently published in the American Field. The work will be entitled "Practical Hints on Camping," and will also treat on fishing, shooting, and camp photography.

DODD, MEAD & CO. call the attention of the trade to the fact that in their advertisement in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY for September 16th the price of "The Winter Night Series" was inadvertently given as 40 cents per volume. It should read 50 cents per volume, and $5 for the set of 10 volumes.

GINN, HEATH & CO. will issue in a few days Prof. G. A. Wentworth's "Plane and Spherical Trigonometry;" "Elements of Physics," a text-book for high schools and academies, by Alfred P. Gage, instructor in physics in English High School, Boston; and a "Spanish Grammar," by Prof. Knapp, of Yale.

A LARGE number of American literary men are just now in London, and were recently entertained by Mr. J. R. Osgood, of Boston. Among the guests were Messrs. W. D. Howells, Henry James, T. B. Aldrich, Bret Harte, John Hay, Moncure D. Conway, Charles Dudley Warner, Clarence King, and Edwin Booth.

W. B. SMITH & CO. announce an important work on the subject of silk culture, by Louise Capsadell, Secretary of the New York Silk Exchange, assisted by Virion des Lauriens, silk-culturist and Superintendent of the New York Silk Exchange. This work is intended both as a practical manual for silk-culturists and a text-book for schools.

DODD, MEAD & CO. have in preparation for the holidays a handsome folio of etchings by modern English and French artists, with biographical and critical text by S. G. W. Benjamin; a volume of family worship, prayers, etc., by Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott; and Bell's "Songs from the Dramatists," which will be issued in sumptuous style. They will also issue 100 copies on large paper of the latter work.

THE UNIVERSALIST PUBLISHING HOUSE have just ready the long-promised "Life of Edwin H. Chapin, D.D.," by Dr. Ellis. The author has made his work a labor of love, and has produced a book which is not made up of scraps and newspaper notices of the man as an eloquent divine and a popular platform lecturer, but is a careful and discriminating presentation of the character, life, and labors of one of the foremost pulpit orators of America. The same house issues this week "Walks in Zion," by Rev. S. M. Atwood, D.D., the President of the Canton Theological School.

DAVID MCKAY, successor to Rees Welsh & Co., has now ready Walt Whitman's new book, "Specimen Days." It is uniform in size, style, color, and price with "Leaves of Grass." This new volume gives more of the true inwardness of Whitman than any of his writings. The early portion of it is devoted to his "Diary," "Pieces of Early Youth," etc., while the latter portion contains his "Essays" and "Specimen Days." It contains a photograph of the "gray poet" at his present age. The first edition has been exhausted before printing.

HENRY HOLT & CO. have in preparation three new volumes. The first to appear will be Louisa Parr's "Robin," a love story containing some neat character drawing. Mrs. Alexander's novel, "The Admiral's Ward," describes with unusual spirit a girl of strong and noble character; Mr. Hardy's "Two on a Tower"—which will be brought out in November—will probably be the cause of much critical discussion. They will shortly publish three more Lives of American Worthies: George Washington, by Mr. John Habberton; Thomas Jefferson, by Mr. Joel Chandler Harris; and Andrew Jackson, by Mr. George T. Lanigan.

THE business of R. Worthington, New York, has grown to such proportions that he has decided to devote his entire attention to his own publications and importations. The former are of such a number as to make a large catalogue, and they include many valuable standard books and one of the finest lines of juveniles made in this country. He also imports extensively from English publishers and controls the American market on many standard English works. By relinquishing his general retail and jobbing business he will be relieved from much unprofitable detail and be enabled to extend still further his publishing and importations. Mr. Worthington's plans include also a removal to more commodious premises.

A. WILLIAMS & CO. have just ready a handsome juvenile entitled "Troublesome Children: Their Ups and Downs," by William Wilberforce Newton, with many colored illustrations and a brilliantly illuminated cover by Francis G. Atwood; "The Eastern Question; or, an Outline of Mohammedanism," a scholarly survey of the rise, progress, and decay of Islamism by an Arab; "Railway Travel in Europe and America," with twenty-five tables of recent and novel statistics of journeys, speeds, fares, etc., for travellers and others, by Robert S. Minot; "The Modern House-Carpenter's Companion and Builder's Guide," by W. A. Sylvester; and a new edition of "Rollo's Tour to Cambridge."

BAKER, PRATT & CO. invite attention to their large and handsome stock of new goods for the fall and holiday trade. It is not often that so many and such beautiful articles are found together under one roof, and we therefore advise those who are able, to give themselves a treat by inspecting the goods now exhibited at No. 19 Bond Street. Everything imaginable may be found there, from the richest French plaques and luxuriously mounted vases down to slate-pencils. They take especial pride in their large lines of plush and horn goods. In the latter they have some really unique and graceful articles, combining ornament and utility, which will recommend themselves at once as holiday presents. In their less expensive line they show a large and handsome assortment of olive wood goods, comprising card-boxes, writing sets, stamp-boxes, match-safes, pin-cushions, inks, and cabinets for smokers and liquor sets for the socially inclined. As we have said before, it will amply repay any one to see for himself this rich display of goods.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT & Co. have just issued the new edition of "Lippincott's Gazetteer of the World." This invaluable work was recently thoroughly revised, reconstructed, and enlarged, and now a great deal of new material has been added, which will make it more valuable than ever. The new features are a series of supplementary tables of population embodying the most recent census returns, and embracing a table of the area and aggregate population, and population per square mile, of the principal natural and political divisions, of the world; a comparative table of the population of the principal cities of the world at different dates according to official census returns; a table of the aggregate population of the United States, according to the census of the several decades from 1790 to 1880; a table showing the area and population of the States and Territories of the United States, with the population per square mile, according to the census returns of the several decades from 1830 to 1880 inclusive; a comparative table of the population of the counties of the several States, according to the census returns of 1870 and 1880, and a comparative table of the population of the cities, towns, and villages of the United States, according to the census returns of 1870 and 1880. The price has been changed from $10 to $12.

LONGMAN & Co. will shortly publish "An Examination of the Structural Principles of Mr. Herbert Spencer's Philosophy," by the Rev. W. D. Ground, author of "Ecce Christianus." The writer accepts the evolution hypothesis, and argues this is consistent not with agnosticism, but with theism.

SAMPSON LOW, MARSTON & Co. will publish almost immediately an édition de luxe of Mr. R. D. Blackmore's masterpiece, "Lorna Doone," being the twentieth edition in a period of eighteen years. It will have full-page illustrations of scenes, events, characters, etc., from drawings made on the spot by Mr. W. Small, and engraved by Mr. J. D. Cooper; and also head-pieces and initial letters by Mr. W. H. J. Boot, consisting of views in Devon and Somerset. The same publishers also announce "Lives of Illustrious Shoemakers," by Mr. W. E. Winks, with nine portraits.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE Caterer is the name of a new household magazine conducted by James W. Parkinson, of Philadelphia.

The American begins with the first issue in October, the publication of concise weekly reports of the proceedings of the Academy of Natural Sciences (Philadelphia), and of its several sections. These reports will be specially prepared by thoroughly competent hands, under the direction of Professor Angelo Heilprin, of the Academy, and they will constitute, should there be an evidence of the public appreciation of them, a permanent feature of the journal. Under Professor Heilprin's direction, there will be added, from time to time, other interesting scientific data—including reports of the latest investigations, American and foreign, in the fields of biology, geology, palæontology, botany, physics, etc.

THE Methodist Book Concern has purchased the subscription-list and good-will of the Methodist, which will be transferred to the Christian Advocate after the issue of the former journal on October 6. The Methodist was founded in 1860. The Rev. Dr. George R. Crooks, now a Professor in Drew Theological Seminary, was its first editor, associated with the Rev. Dr. Abel Stevens, who, for four years prior to 1860, was editor of the Christian Advocate, being succeeded by election of the General Conference by the Rev. Edward Thompson, D.D., subsequently a Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, now deceased. The retiring editors are: The Rev. David H. Wheeler, D.D., editor; the Rev. Daniel Curry, D.D., associate, and the Rev. Nathan Hubbell, church news editor. H. W. Douglas was the publisher.

Mr. McKay has had sole charge of the business for some time past, is thoroughly competent in all branches of the business, and would invite the patronage of his fellow-members of the trade.

DOCTOR ZAY.

A novel by ELIZABETH STUART PHELPS, author of "The Gates Ajar," "Friends," etc. 1 vol., 16mo, $1.25.

While this story was appearing serially in the Atlantic Monthly it attracted remarkable attention, and was regarded as one of the strongest and most engaging novels Miss Phelps has ever written. By MRS. A. D. T. WHITNEY. New edition, considerably enlarged. Illustrated by AUGUSTUS HOPPIN. 12mo, attractively bound, $1.50.

Mrs. Whitney has added several fresh chapters to the original edition of this book, in which she applies, with variations, the sense and nonsense of Mother Goose's nursery rhymes to the experiences of grown folks, and contrives to elicit no small amount of wit and wisdom, making a book which may well be as entertaining to adults as the little folks have found Mother Goose for many generations.

A CORRECTION.

Somehow, since our Spanish Bible has become a household favorite in foreign countries, the impression has gone abroad that we publish the HOLY BIBLE in every language. We disclaim this flattering reputation. We own as yet only the modest variety of English, German, and Spanish plates—Protestant and Catholic versions. But the additional features of our Bibles have been imitated and translated into almost every tongue, and our elegant bindings are the standard for imitations on both sides of the Atlantic.

Teachers' Bibles in great variety of bindings, containing a Bible Dictionary, and other valuable features not found in either the Oxford or Bagster editions. Large type Revised New Testament. Fine line of Photograph Albums, for imperial, cabinet, and cartes-de-visite pictures.

THE DEVELOPMENT OF

English Literature and Language.

By Prof. A. H. WELSH, A.M. 2 vols., crown 8vo, 1100 pages, $5.

The publishers invite the attention of educators and general readers to this unique, graphic, and scholarly work, which they now offer to the public confident that it will be found, upon examination, to be one of the ablest and most fascinating works that has ever appeared on this inc.easingly important subject.

CHARACTERISTICS OF THE WORK.

It goes back to the pre-English ages, indicating the elements of the English nation, the controlling qualities of English civilization, showing the sources from which the speech and literature have been derived, and illustrating their development by appropriate and copious examples woven into the text of criticism.

Each pre-eminent or representative author is discussed under the classified heads of Biography, Writings, Style, Rank, Character, and Influence.

Each of the periods into which the work is divided is introduced by a sketch of the features which distinguish it, and of the forces which shape it, including Politics, the state of Society, Religion, Learning, Language, Poetry, the Drama, the Novel, the Periodical, History, Theology, Ethics, Science, Philosophy. Periods are re-created; the past is resuscitated. The actors are made to reveal themselves in their own words. Indeed, it is thought that their is no other work which covers the same ground, and gives so lucid, instructive, and entertaining a presentation of our literary and lingustic development from its earliest stages to the death of Emerson.

An important feature of the work is the discussion of the American literature of the nineteenth century in connection with the English literature of the same period.
